Lindsay, white, who is not yet 5 years old. The child visited the color-coded company which was just a little distance back of Lindsay's home, and the mother found the little one almost dead shortly afterward. A crowd went in pursuit and Anderson was captured. He is now in jail, and if the little one dies it is safe to say that the law will not be allowed to take charge of the case.

WOMEN CAUSE TROUBLE

Methodist Episcopal Conference Has a Rather Lively Debate

CLEVELAND, May 5.—The advocates and opponents of the proposition to admit women delegates were pitted against each other in the Methodist general conference in what will probably be a decisive battle. The committee of 31 on eligibility sent in a majority report in favor of the women and a minority report. These were debated warmly and will be further considered. Each side claims success. The standing committees organized in the afternoon and will be in session every afternoon during the conference.

The 13 standing committees and the special committee on Epworth league organized permanently and will begin work at once. Among them are the committee which will consider the advisability of having more bishops and that which will make a recommendation on the proposition to mitigate the severity of the rule governing the itinerancy of ministers.

Bishop Foss said "I believe that more of the bishops than not think our number should be increased by three or four. The minority, however, is very strong. My idea, if more bishops are chosen, is not to make bishops of India, China, Africa, etc., but to have them bishops in a general sense, so that we can devote what time is necessary to this country and certain of us go to foreign lands for a year or more to be devoted there."

It is stated that Rev. A. F. Kolaczewski, pastor of the Independent Polish Catholic Church of the Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and also the head of the Independent Polish movement in the United States, has approached Chaplain McCabe with a proposition to turn his church, with its congregation, to the Methodist denomination. Chaplain McCabe, while admitting that the offer had been made, declined to discuss it.

TAMED THE PLUMBER

THE BOY HELPER WHO WAS TOO STRONG FOR THE BUSINESS.

A Talented Journeyman Who Had One Fault, Which Has Been Cured Recently by the Employer's Novel Plan—On His Guard Now Against "Hangers."

This is the story of the taming of the journeyman plumber. The journeyman plumber was the best of his kind in town, and was much sought after by boss plumbers. As soon as they described his talents, "he can sling more material into a job in the greatest length of time than any man in the business."

But the journeyman plumber was, with all his talents, a hard man to keep employed on account of his irascibility. His temper was shorter than a rabbit's tail, and he took out his indignation and his headaches and aches with his wife on his helpers.

A helper to a journeyman plumber is a youth who lays out tools, holds pipe, hands the journeyman his solder and his soldering iron, and who carries back and forth the journeyman's bag of tools and his furnace. He is a journeyman in embryo, and the first thing he learns is implicit obedience to his journeyman and not to be too swift. Plumbers call him "cub" and "kid."

This particular journeyman abused his helpers. When things went wrong he usually caught his helper by the ear and swatted him. The result was that the helpers returned to the shop and told the boss they lacked the talent for plumbing and quit. As a result the available helper timber was rapidly becoming exhausted.

The boss plumber did not wish to lose his journeyman, but he was almost at the end of his list of helpers. Consequently he thought, "After much labor he produced an idea. He went down to a resort kept by a 'professor.' It was a dingy place, with a sloppy bar and fly specked mirror on one side and a row of barrels on the other. The walls were covered with boxing gloves and highly colored pictures of men in fighting attitudes. As the result of a conference between the boss plumber and the 'professor,' a stunted youth, very broad across the shoulders, was called up.

"I want a boy to learn the plumber's trade," said the boss plumber.

"Well, you'll have to guess again," said the stunted youth. "There ain't no money in it. Maybe four or five a week, but I can't make that out of the punchin' bag in here, see?"

He means that he could earn $5 a week teaching half baked sports to punch the bag.

"I'll give you $2.50 a day to see how you like the plumber's business," said the plumber.

"I'll go you," said the stunted youth. The next morning the stunted youth appeared at the plumber's shop in overalls and a little round cap with a peak. He was told to go out with the journeyman plumber. Together they went to a big vacant building to set up an iron pipe. They were sent to the vacant building that there might be no family there to be shocked should anything occur. On the way the stunted youth endeavored to become acquainted with the journeyman, but the journeyman was snifter and the acquaintance stopped.

When the building was reached the journeyman said, "Scatter them tools." The tools were scattered about, so that when one was needed some little time was consumed in picking it out. The pipe was several inches in diameter, and the game was to pile one joint upon another and solder it there, and so to the top of the building. The pipes were heavy and four times as tall as the stunted youth. As a result, it was difficult for him to hold them up straight. At last the journeyman, who was on a ladder soldering, looked down and said: "Hold him up. If you don't hold that pipe up straight, I'll come down and bend your face!"

At this the stunted youth dropped the pipe and said: "All right. Come down and bend me face." The journeyman had never been talked to like this before, and he "came down."

When it was all over, the journeyman went home in a carriage with a man holding his head in his lap. The stunted youth walked back to the shop. "Say," he said to the boss, "I'm too strong for the plumbin' business. Guess I'll quit."

"Why, what's the matter?" asked the boss.

"Oh, that guy you sent me out with started to bend me face. De doc's took him home in a hack. Say, his face is hard," and he rubbed his knuckles.

"All right," said the boss. "If you've got to quit, here's your $2.50, but I think you'd make a great plumber."

The next morning the journeyman plumber walked into the shop. He was a sight.

"Wot kind of a murderer was that you sent out with me yesterday?" he asked, out of the uncovered corner of his mouth. "Say, he bent me scandalous with a piece of lead pipe." And the boss laughed a loud, scornful laugh, for he knew that the journeyman had been tamed. And, sure enough, thereafter the journeyman treated his helpers as tenderly as sons, for he never knew when he might run against another "ringer."

The Pulley Line Man.

An occupation that has sprung up with the growth of flats is that of the pulley line man. The pulley line man goes about with a coil of line over his arm, and he is ready to provide line or to put in order lines already up. Sometimes lines get jammed in the pulley blocks. He will clear them. Clothes left out over night may, if a high wind should arise, get all twisted up on the line. The pulley line man will free them. He has a roate and appears regularly at certain houses on certain days. His coming may be counted upon, and he will do anything that needs to be done about pulley lines.

It retains the diseased food too long in the bowels and produces biliousness, torpid liver, indigestion, head ache, coated tongue, sick headache, jaundice, etc. Hood's Pills cure constipation and all its results, easily and thoroughly. Picture of a Sea Fight.

Instantaneous photography has made it easy today for men with little knowledge of seamanship to place ships and boats under sail in a picture, but in early days the power of doing so correctly was limited to a few men like Stanfield and Captain Beechy, R. N.

The difficulty of obtaining anything like a reliable description of a sea fight, even from those who had taken part in it, was, according to Stanfield, very great, and he told us how, when planning his picture of "The Battle of Trafalgar," he applied to Captain Hardy for advice as to the position of the Victory.

Hardy's answer being that, owing to the smoke, it was impossible during the height of the action to see beyond the ships alongside, adding, "I am about the worst man you could come to, for some time before that which your picture represents the Victory's tiller ropes had been shot away, and I was below in the steerage attending to them and the helm, and down there we knew so little of what was going on that we continued to load and fire one of her stern guns until ordered from the deck to stop, because we were firing into one of our own ships."

Like Louthborough, Stanfield had been at sea as a young man, while both owed much of their facility and power of composing a subject to their early training in the scene loft. But I think Louthborough greatly surpassed Stanfield as a draftsman and in knowledge of naval architecture.—Temple Bar.

Parker's and Porter's.

The dictionaries, always addicted to commonplace derivations, insist that "porterhouse" steaks are so called because they were first sold at houses where porter was also sold. Perhaps this is so, but the Listener would like to think that they were invented at Porter's tavern, at North Cambridge, and that, starting from this humble but festive hostelry, they had made the triumphant tour of the world. It will no doubt be a hard matter to establish this Cambridge ancestry for the steaks, but Cambridge and liberal porterhouse steaks, and yet porterhouse steaks are no more celebrated than Parker House rolls. Harvard men go everywhere, and Parker's and Porter's have been in the days of their respective ascendancies considerably more than a household word to Harvard men.—Boston Transcript.

During the Quarrel.

He—I confess that I do not comprehend you.

She (trigly)—I thought I had made myself perfectly plain.

He—Ah! But you couldn't do that, Alice.

Reconciliation follows.—New York Journal.

The cartoons of De Grimm in the New York Herald and other papers were familiar in all America, but few of those who saw the name "De Grimm" attached to the pictures knew that the artist was a nobleman, a real baron, descendant of an ancient German family. His work was better known than his title of nobility, which could scarcely be said of any other nobleman of the artist's generation. He was designed for the diplomatic profession, but he scorned the trammels of social and political life and broke away and made for himself by his artistic talent a name far more noble than any title could confer on him. De Grimm was a man of fine and handsome presence. He was introduced to the American newspaper public by James Gordon Bennett, who knows talent when he finds it.

The Time for Building

Up the system is at this season. The cold weather has made unusual drains upon the vital forces. The blood has become impoverished and impure, and all the functions of the body suffer in consequence. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the great builder, because it is the One True Blood Purifier and nerve tonic.

Hood's PILLS become the favorite cathartic with all who use them. All druggists. 25c.

For every quarter in a man's pocket there are a dozen uses; and to use each one in such a way as to derive the greatest benefit is a question every one must solve for himself. We believe, however, that no better use could be made of one of these quarters than to exchange it for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, a medicine that every family should be provided with. For sale by Melville Bros., old postoffice corner, and C. W. Heister, 58 Pacific Square.

London Street Hawkers.

The selling of ice cream appears to be the most profitable street hawking trade. The late Carlo Gatti, who first introduced the "penny ice" into the streets of London, once boasted, in a trial for compensation for removal, of having made a profit of £4,000 a year from that source alone.

Starting single handed his success was such that he imported many of his countrymen to help him, with the grand result named.

At the Thames police court not long since a vendor of ice creams astonished the presiding magistrate by informing him that he had sold for 8 shillings that which originally cost him 1, thus making a profit of 700 per cent.

When the season of the year is not suitable for ice, the street hawkers of that commodity turn their attention either to fruits or baked chestnuts.—London Tri-Bit.

Joshua Taken to Task.

"Joshua, wasn't you telling me that there wasn't no Methodists in France?"

"Yes, Miranda."

"Why, here's four columns about Damas, the elder, and he seems to have been a bigger man than any other we have got in our church. Guess that's another time when you didn't know what you was talking about, Joshua."

How Fast Does Electricity Travel?

The above question is frequently asked in every day conversations, but is seldom answered to the satisfaction of the querist. Wheatstone says that the speed of electricity from point to point along a proper conductor is practically instantaneous. Various attempts have been made to ascertain the exact number of miles which the current will travel in a given length of time. According to the most reliable estimates which such experiments have made its speed is not less than 114,000 miles per second. The writer adds: "Such speed is inconceivably great. The mind cannot contemplate it without staggering."

THE PAWNBROKER.

His Life Not a Happy One From His Own Point of View.

"Yes," said the pawnbroker, "the public has an idea that we are a hard hearted lot, but that is only one side of the story. A man in this business who had tears to shed wouldn't have a roof over his head inside of a year."

"You mean you can't afford to pity the misfortunes of others on a cash basis?" I queried.

"Very few people come here on account of misfortune. You saw the young man who went out as you came in?"

"Yes—an actor, eh?"

"Very likely. Here's a watch he brought. The works are second class and the cases filled. I can buy a carload at $15 apiece. He was hard up and came here to make a raise. He said his wife was dying, and he wanted $25 on the watch. When I offered him $3, he wept, but if you'll follow him two blocks you'll find him in a saloon, spending part of the money. Nine out of ten customers don't hesitate to lie, and ten out of ten would beat your Uncle Isaac if they could."

"But people pawn their clothes to get food," I said.

"Perhaps so. Here's a dress a woman brought in an hour ago. She also wept. She had a story about sickness and hunger, and she declared this was her wedding dress. From certain earmarks I know she bought this dress secondhand. I know she paid $4 for it. I strained a point when I offered her $2, but she'll go out and call me a highway robber."

"But you never get taken in and done for?"

"Don't I? Well, I'd like to see the pawnbroker who hasn't been done up! It's a cold month when I don't get beat, and by the very people whom you would sympathize with most. See these shiners?"

"Yes—fine diamonds."

"Want 'em for a dollar apiece?"

"You don't mean it!"

"Glad to get it, sir. They were left by a woman who wanted to raise money to bury her husband. I was half sick and very busy and gave her $60 on them. They are paste—only paste. She came in here to beat me of course, and no doubt had a good laugh over it. Here's a locket set with pearls, which my clerk advanced $30 on. The weeping man who brought it wanted to bury his dead wife with the money. I can buy 'em at wholesale for $3 apiece. Don't you believe all you hear about your uncle having a heart of stone. There are plenty of people who wouldn't beat a street car, but we are considered fair game for them, and they'll lie like smoke to take us in. It's a great place for tears, sighs and tales of sorrow, but the main idea is to give your Uncle Isaac the cold drop, and it's done often—than I care to acknowledge."

MYSTERIES OF THE LOUVRE.

Walls That Are Believed to Hide the Bones of Murdered Men.

Every one who has "done" the Louvre will remember the low pitched and somewhat gloomy halls in which are stored the treasures of Egypt. Beneath these lie more darkly mysterious vaults, inaccessible to the public, though approached by a wide and handsome staircase, such as would lead one to imagine that it communicated with apartments of some importance. Yet one finds at the bottom nothing but broad passages disposed in the form of a cross, and without any sign whatever of door or window.

A recent examination, however, of the solid stone walls gives experts reason to believe that the masonry is more recent than the rest of the structure in this, the oldest portion of the fortress palace. M. Vamouze, a well known critic, believes that many of the bodies of victims killed in the revolution of 1830 were immured here, and that the government was afraid to reveal the fact when the remains of their comrades were collected beneath the Colonne de Juillet.

On the other hand, M. Blondel, the architect of the building, and M. Normand, the secretary of the Society for Protecting Parisian Monuments, hold the opinion that these subterranean passages led to the cauldrons, into which Catherine de Medici cast those who were unfortunate enough to incur her hate or fear. A judicious exploration would clear up the matter and settle, too, several doubtful points as to the foundations of Lesseps' original citadel. Unfortunately, the annual grant does not provide for any such archaeological research, and it would be necessary to appeal for funds to the generosity of the chamber.—London Chronicle.

What About Leather?

The question is frequently asked: What is a vegetarian community to use instead of leather? Of course substitutes would have to be found. At present, as hides are a waste product, there is no need to seek further, but when they become scarce other substances will certainly take their place. Other things have already begun to compete with leather. Formerly the doublet and breeches and even bottles were made of that substance. Now we use cloth for bookbinding and other purposes and may have artificial leather boots. Demand always stimulates invention and production. It may therefore be safely predicted that to make ample provision for our clothing, even under a vegetarian regime, is a task not beyond the resources of civilization. We may be sure that if we have followed nature thus far and trusted her for our greater wants she will assuredly not fail us in these lesser things.—Westminster Review.

A Chicago Judge has quashed a large number of indictments against persons doing business in "bucket shops." In giving his decision that he did not think there should be a distinction between the business conducted by a bucket shop and the Board of Trade, the only difference being that the former did business on a retail basis and the latter on a wholesale plan. And the judge is right.

Cripple Creek, through her people, has often said to the world that she had money to burn, and recent events prove the truth of the statement.

There is as much difference in the estimates made of the strength of the Republican presidential candidates as there was variability in the weather during the month of March.

The unfortunate accident in Cincinnati yesterday, in which the Mayor of Covington lost his life by the explosion of a few beer pumps, should serve as a lesson to mayors in general.

It would be well for Democrats to read and ponder upon Senator Wolcott's letter to his constituents. In this letter Mr. Wolcott states that he is a Republican first and a free silverite next. He advises Colorado Republicans to make a stiff fight for free coinage at St. Louis, and if defeated to go home and vote the Republican ticket. No one doubts but that the great mass of Republicans will do that too. They may advocate a doctrine, but if their party does not declare for it they are not going to swing away from the party. Democrats will do well to do likewise. A good Democrat will always defer to the desire of a majority of Democrats. Submission to the will of the majority is a cardinal principle which must be lived up to in a country where men manage their own affairs. There should be no talk of bolting. A bolter never gets anything, never succeeds in doing anything and he is as successful as he deserves to be.

No matter whether McKinley is nominated at St. Louis or not, the convention is going to reaffirm high protection. The tariff is sure to cut no small figure in the coming campaign. It will be one of the big issues, if not the only one that will divide the two parties. In the campaign we will hear, of course, a great deal about free trade, and England will be cited to us by Republican orators, as the country showing the best example of that doctrine in existence. England has nothing to fear from a comparison with any nation. Beleaguered by protected countries and with none for herself, England goes right along and presents a year's account of prosperity that other nations envy but do not enjoy. They haven't any tariff agitation in England. The people there are satisfied with the doctrine of free trade and England is the most prosperous country on the globe. England in these days, when protected countries are experiencing business depression and industrial blights, goes right along, saws lots of wood and finds a market for every bit of it. The "free trade" that the Republicans howl about in this country is a tariff sufficient to raise the necessary revenue to run the government, and that tariff more than makes up the difference in the rates of wages between England and the United States.

STRONG REASONS.

The Philadelphia Record gives the following pithy summary of the seeming enthusiasm for McKinley: There is a commercial aspect in the surge of the Republican hosts toward McKinley that is as remarkable as the political aspect. Mr. Mark Hanna, the financial manager of the McKinley boom for the time being, seems to absorb quite as much of the public attention as his principal. On reflection such a condition of affairs will not appear strange. It is well understood that if Mr. McKinley be elected President he will support a policy of discrimination in favor of certain special interests. His friends expect to make money out of their friendship, and money is the secret of their friendship.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Building Blows to Atoms and Many Persons Killed.
CINCINNATI, May 5.—At 8 p. m. the 5-story building, 430 and 432 Walnut street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, was blown to the ground by an explosion of gasoline. The shock was so terrific that it was felt all over the city, and one man broke upon another in the front and rear walls of the building, while the adjacent buildings are badly damaged and the glass in the windows in the Gibson House and the larger Johnson building across the street were all broken. The glass was broken out of streetscars that were passing at the time and one of the cars was badly wrecked, but none of the passengers were seriously hurt.

Dead.
Adolph Drach, wife and two children.
Noland Davis, traveling for the Columbia Carriage company. Hamilton, O. Missing.

R. A. Fricke, Norwood.
Joseph Northner, barkeeper.
Joseph Fey, wife and baby.
Two servant girls in the families of Fey and Drach.

No One Escaped.
The ground floor of 432 Walnut street was occupied by Adolph Drach as a saloon. He owned that part of the building and the other part was owned by M. Goldsmith, and the first floor of this building at 430 Walnut street was also occupied by a saloon run by Louis Ray. The upper floors of the 5-story building were occupied as flats. It is not known how many were in the saloons, but not one escaped, as the building immediately collapsed. There was no fire to consume the debris and make certain death of all in the building.

The saloons were said to be quite full of people. One of the barkeepers who was not on duty at the time and escaped lived in one of the upper flats and was wild with grief because he knew that his wife and four children were in the ruins. One of his children was rescued soon after the explosion. There were wild reports about the extent of the loss of life.

Six Bodies Were Recovered
up to 9:30 p. m., and it is known that there are many more. One of the children of Mr. Drach was recovered dead. The body of Mrs. Drach was found soon after the explosion but it could not be extricated from the timber and was still in the debris at 10 o'clock.

The saloons in the building had put in their own electric plants for incandescent lights and had just secured a gasoline engine with which to run the dynamo. The plant got out of fix and there was a flash which communicated to the gasoline and caused the explosion. The sudden collapse of the large building smothered everything in the cellar so that there was no fire.

Some of the Victims.
Mr. John James of the Salt Lake Herald was just leaving the home at the time of the explosion and with his heavy grip was blown into the doorway of an adjoining store. He was knocked senseless but afterward recovered sufficiently to take the train for St. Louis on his way west.

Noland Davis, a traveling man for the Columbia Carriage company, was walking along the street at the time of the explosion and was blown under a streetcar and killed.

At 10:30 the 3-year-old boy of Adolph Drach was taken from the ruins so badly hurt that he is not likely to live. His aged grandfather was among those who had come to the scene and soon learned that Mr. Drach's youngest child had been taken out dead. His 3-year-old boy was taken out seriously injured and that the body of Mrs. Drach could not be extricated from the heavy timbers. The old man broke down under the news and is in a very serious condition.

RIGHT OF AN ASYLUM.

It May Be Granted to a Certain Extent Only.

THIS MUST NOT BE ABUSED.

While Chase Rejoins Protection May Be Afforded, but When Peace Is Restored the Fugitive Must Be Surrendered.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The state department has again made an advanced position relative to the limitation of the right of asylum as is exhibited in the correspondence between the department and United States Minister Tiliunan respecting the sheltering by the latter of an officer of the overthrown government of Ecuador last September.

While approving the course of the minister, Secretary Olney took the ground that although asylum might be afforded in the case of a member of an overthrown titular government while chaos reigned and until the empire of the law is restored, when the authority of the state is re-established upon an orderly footing no disparagement of its powers under the mistaken fiction of extra territoriality can be countenanced on the part of the representatives of this government.

In this the members of such governments are therefore placed upon an equality with unsuccessful revolutionists who can not find in United States legations asylum against the operations of the local law.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

In the House.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The first skirmish over the senate amendment to the naval appropriation bill reducing the number of battleships provided for in that bill from four to two occurred in the house when Mr. Boutwell, chairman of the naval committee, moved to non-concur in all the senate amendments and request a conference of the senate. Mr. Boutwell undertook to justify the senate vote by their own statement. He referred to the war scares of the past winter and the belated resolutions introduced in the senate and then sarcastically contrasted the war talk of some of the senators with their votes to reduce the number of battleships provided for in the bill.

Mr. Quigg (Rep., N. Y.) called Mr. Boutwell to order for criticizing members of the upper house and was sustained by the chair after some very lively sparring. Mr. Boutwell, however, unaccompanied by his aid, withdrew the chair's ruling. Subsequently Mr. Baynes of Texas moved to commit the senate amendment reducing the number of battleships, but by consent the motion went over for action, when it is likely that the whole question of larger appropriations at this time for strengthening the navy will be reopened and ventilated.

In the Senate.
WASHINGTON, May 5.—The outlined program for the senate procedure this week was shattered early in the day's session by two unexpected motions. When the intended action to consider the river and harbor bill was attempted it was antagonized by a motion by Mr. Turpie (D., Ind.) to consider the Dupont election case.

Mr. Mitchell, with considerable display of feeling, sought to prevent this course, but by an aye and nay vote, resulting 32 to 21, the senate decided to take up the Dupont case. Later an agreement was effected to postpone the matter until the river and harbor bill was passed, the 11 vote in the election case to be taken two days after consideration was begun.

At 2 o'clock the unfinished business came up in the form of the bond investigation resolution. Mr. Peffer refused to further delay the matter and his motion to proceed with the placing of the river and harbor bill, Mr. Hill thereupon took the floor and spoke until adjournment.

He was attacked by the old squirrel, and, losing his hold on the limbs, fell to the ground, a distance of nearly 50 feet. Besides having his skull fractured he had both legs broken and sustained serious injuries about the breast and back.

History Has Begun.

MAYOR'S APPOINTMENTS

Of Firemen Submitted to the City Council Last Night.

The Appointments Referred to Fire Committee—The Bicycle Ordinance to be Prepared—Other Business.

The city council met in regular session last night, with president Standish in the chair and the following members present: Miller, Morrison, Snyder, Metheany, Kiplinger, Chapin, Van Eman, Stephens, Brotherton, Harmon, Foley and McVey.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

Circular street property owners petitioned for a sewer. Mr. Brotherton was in favor of the construction of the sewer, and moved to instruct the engineer to prepare estimate and the solicitor to draft the ordinance.

Mr. Miller said the sewer was badly needed.

Mr. Brotherton's motion was carried.

J. C. Thompson requested the council to take some action and have the sewer connection between his block and the main sewer on the public square repaired. He stated that the sewer was stopped up and the sanitary condition of the block was endangered.

Mr. McVey thought Mr. Thompson responsible for the condition of the sewer and did not think the city should pay for the repairs on the sewer.

Mr. Brotherton said that he thought the sewer was stopped up beneath the five foot brick walk between the square proper and the sidewalk. He thought Mr. Thompson would pay for the work if the difficulty should be found in his own sewer. He moved that the city enter into a contract with Mr. Thompson that he pay for the work if the stoppage be found in his sewer. His motion was carried.

The bicyclists' petition was read by the clerk and Mr. Foley moved to instruct the solicitor to draft an ordinance to prohibit the riding of bicycles on sidewalks.

Mr. Van Eman wanted the speed of bicycles regulated at 6 or 8 miles an hour.

Mr. Chapin objected to keeping the wheels off the sidewalks entirely, but was in favor of regulating the speed on sidewalks and also on the street. He said that school teachers and working men used bicycles and could not always ride in the street.

Mr. Metheany favored the prayer of the petition and Mr. Foley's motion.

Mr. Foley did not think it advisable to prohibit the use of bicycles on all streets. He was in favor of regulating the speed on the sidewalks at 4 miles an hour.

Mr. Harmon did not think the sidewalks the place for bicycles. He thought that it would be as well to let horses and buggies on the sidewalks.

Mr. Van Eman said that a bicycle could not be ridden at a rate of 4 miles an hour. He considered it too slow.

Attorney J. O. Oiler made an address to the council advocating the passage of the ordinance.

Mr. Chapin said that he was still in favor of regulating the speed of bicycles at 6 miles an hour on the sidewalks and on the public square.

Mr. Kiplinger was in favor of passing the ordinance and having it to prohibit the use of the sidewalk for bicycle riding under any consideration.

Mr. Foley wanted the ordinance passed with provisions to keep the wheels off the sidewalks entirely.

Mr. Morrison wanted the wheels kept off the sidewalks entirely, the speed regulated and the bikes equipped with bells and lanterns.

Mr. Metheany moved to instruct the solicitor to draft the ordinance prohibiting the use of sidewalks was carried by a unanimous vote.

M. O. Craig was granted permission to store building material on High street.

The finance committee recommended the allowance of bills aggregating as follows:

General fund $1,078.82
Fire fund 582.45
Light fund 1,220.00
Police fund 778.84
Poor fund 62.00
Sanitary fund 1,108.12
Grand total $5,821.44

Mr. Miller thought Dr. Miesse's bill of $70 for seven days' attendance upon the small pox patients was too large and should be cut down.

Mr. Metheany said that Dr. Miesse's total bill this month was $270 for twenty-seven days, but he thought the bill would have to be paid.

Mr. Morrison said that the board of health had promised Dr. Miesse $10 per day when he took charge of the small pox cases.

Mr. Brotherton said such contracts should be made by resolution or ordinance.

Mr. Foley said he was sick of law and lawyers and thought the bill had better be allowed. He referred to the costs of over $400 in the case of Mrs. Cora Robinson against the city.

Mr. Brotherton moved to take Dr. Miesse's bill from the report of the finance.

Mr. Chapin thought that Dr. Miesse had earned $10 a day. He said the small pox patients which Dr. Miesse attended had injured his practice.

Mr. Miller did not think Dr. Miesse's practice had been injured.

Mr. Brotherton's motion was lost and the motion to allow all bills carried.

The street committee recommended the acceptance of Philip Dingle's plat. The recommendation was adopted.

The sewer committee recommended a sewer on west Wayne street, from Baxter to the Timberlake sewer, and the solicitor was instructed to prepare an ordinance for the improvement.

Mayor Barter submitted the appointment of the following for members of the fire department. Ed Cunningham, foreman; Bert Coates, John Maurer, R. D. Rounton, Timothy Daley, Edward Titus, Michael Bourke and Clem Eyster. The old members of the department not appointed were Wm. Erster, Wm. Maurer and Marlon Vermillion.

Upon motion the appointments were referred to the fire committee.

The solicitor reported that he could find nothing in the statutes providing for the construction of partition fences in corporations. He also recommended the preparation of an estimate upon the cost for the proposed improvement of Halber street.

A motion to instruct the engineer to prepare such estimate was carried.

Report of water works clerk was received and filed.

Board of George P. McGuire, city infirmity director, was accepted.

An ordinance to construct a sewer on West street, from North to High street, was given first reading.

Mr. Metheany moved to give the ordinance the second reading.

Mr. Brotherton said that he understood a law had been passed by the State legislature providing that no contracts should be made by city councils unless the money to be expended be in the fund. He moved to lay the ordinance over for one week.

Mr. McVey was in favor of passing the ordinance.

The ordinance was laid over for another week.

An ordinance for a sewer on Harrison avenue to run to a point 160 feet south of Lindie street was given the third reading and passed.

Resolution to construct sidewalks on Third street, from Main street to the Wapakoneta road, was read three times and passed.

Mr. Brotherton said someone had thrown dead rats upon the public square.

Mr. McVey was in favor of employing a man to keep the square clean.

The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids upon the proposed McKibben street sewers.

Mr. Chapin moved to instruct the street commissioner to repair crossings at Lima Northern track on High and North streets and charge the expense to the railroad company. The motion carried.

Mr. Kiplinger moved to reconsider the vote of last Monday night upon the employment of Elmer Andrews as roadman for the city engineer, by which vote Mr. Andrews was rejected.

Mr. Brotherton said he was opposed to the motion, and that the council had no authority to employ Mr. Andrews upon a mere motion.

Mr. Metheany asked for the opinion of the solicitor.

The motion to reconsider carried, and Mr. Kiplinger moved to employ Mr. Andrews for two years.

Mr. Brotherton moved to amend by referring the matter to the solicitor, to report in one week. The amendment carried.

Clerk was instructed to notify Electric Light company to change wires at Kibby and Mercalf streets and run them with the street.

Mr. Brotherton moved to instruct the street commissioner to clean the public square each alternate day. The motion carried.

Master of electric lights not being located, in the second ward, was referred to the light committee.

Mr. Metheany moved to accept the abutments in the size of the abutments for the new bridge on east Market street, as recommended by the engineer.

Mr. Brotherton said the abutments planned for Mr. Gamble would be sufficient for the bridge, and, as the larger abutments recommended by Mr. Prevost would cost an additional $408, he was not in favor of the change.

The motion to increase the size of the abutments carried.

Adjourned.

All in the Teaching

Uncle Steve Melton is famous in Jacksonville for his liberal dispensation of charity and cuss words. He does not use cuss words in a profane way, but simply as a matter of economics. He finds in his fishhouse that he can get more work out of his colored assistants when he uses forcible expletives.

Some months ago a friend came to him and said: "A friend of mine a very wealthy Cuban gentleman is coming to this country to start a large cigar factory. He does not speak a word of English, and has desire to rent a room in some family where English alone is spoken in order that he may master the language."

"Let him come up to my house," said Uncle Steve bluntly, and so the arrangement was made.

After having been there about a month the foreign gentleman was introduced to a lady. He bowed low, with his hat held over his head, and said: "Ah, senora, I'm d—d if I ain't glad to meet you!"—Florida Times-Union

The Writ Was Served.

An impetuous gamekeeper, to avoid being harassed by his impatient creditors, gave instructions to his wife to deny him all such unwelcome visitors.

A process server, however, who had made several unsuccessful attempts to effect personal service of a writ, became at last suspicious.

Assuming himself with a loaded gun he took up a position near a wood cart, and charged the keeper's house and discharged the weapon in the air.

Bang went the gun, out rushed the unsuspecting keeper in search of poachers, and—and the writ was served.—Pearson's Weekly

LINES.

(Suggested on reading the resolution passed by the Ladies' Memorial Association of the United States, in their efforts to decorate the graves of the Civil War soldiers.)

Let the brave and the noble rest in peace! Let the warriors slumber on! They are free from the battle's din and roar. They have won the river of crimson gore. They leave their names alone.

There's better than only the dew of the morn. Bedecked their graves than that woman's scorn.

Should snap the garland of time and of gray. And part the yamets' maters away. That ever bloomed in a nation's heart.

Then leave their warrior comrades alone. Let the daisy starved and the crocuss' bloom.

All minute and waste away. For this letter they rose in innocent sleep. For now as they slumber they clasp hands of love.

And the mate is jured away.

But should woman's hand creep calmly down And cast flowers on the loved ones' mound. Forgiving the Christian creed?

Why, the dead bones fair would rise in their sleep.

And clasp over the cheek and blood stained deep.

That pardoning hand of peace.

This better disturb not their pure, peaceful sod.

They are guarded already by garlands from God.

For the blue tinted violet and grass tuft of gray.

Will rest on both mounds free from strife or display.

And the pearl bars of Eden on Memorial day.

Are always then lowered that spirits may pay To their crumpling caskets that dwell with the day.

But, oh, should these heroes, now brothers in God.

See strife and contention made over their sod.

See mothers and sisters they once deemed as God.

Now scatter the garland of gray and of blue.

That is would in pardoning pity look down And pluck out the thorn from the garland and crown!

GENIE ORCHARD STOVALL.

for he was young, rich, amiable. He was an orphan, untroubled by any undesirable relatives, and, moreover, he had an ample income arising from money in the funds.

Gilbert Tresillian came to stay in Dawlish, where his grandfather then lived, at the Mill House, a charming old place some four miles from the town, surrounded by magnificent gardens, sloping terrace to the sea—gardens the admiration of the west country. The day before the wedding he spent there, returning in the evening to the Red Lion at Dawlish. My aunt walked with him about a mile through the gardens, where they parted until the morning, and from that moment Gilbert Tresillian was never seen or heard of again.

The country was seared, the shore beneath the cliff was scorched—but the slightest trace could be found. My poor aunt came near to dying with brain fever, and when she recovered her beautiful hair was white as snow. My grandfather removed from a place where every object brought back some fearful memory to his daughter, and when, soon after, he died, Aunt Lettie came to live with us in Cromer. Though only a little thing, I recall perfectly the day she came, for I thought I had never seen any one so sweet, and yet so sad. None had ever heard Aunt Lettie laugh, none had even seen her smile, yet she was cheerful always and ready to help every one. All this happened 20 years ago, and though many had sought her hand she was still true to the memory of Gilbert Tresillian.

During the next few days I could think and talk of nothing save the coming masquerade and Jack's return.

But the day never so weary or long. At length it rang to evening.

And so at length the eventful evening arrived. Aunt and mother dressed me in petticoat and train of loveliest white brocade, crimmied with filmy honiton lace. Mother dropped many a furtive tear, recalling the bride that was to have been, whose romance of love was cut short in such a mysterious fashion, but aunt said never a word till I was dressed, and then, turning to my mother, she exclaimed:

"She looks better, Mary, than I should have done, and, after all, you see, it has not been utterly wasted. But you must let me powder your hair, Lettie. Every one was powder when I was young."

At last I was ready, just as the lum-bering old chariot drew up to the door.

The drive to the Hall, the hedges and trees sparkling with frost in the brilliant moonlight, the hammer, hammer of the horses' hoofs upon the iron bound road; the first sight of the Hall, as we drove up the avenue, all its windows illuminated; the faint sound of the music borne upon the still night air; then the entry into the brilliantly lighted rooms; Sir John and Lady Pendarves' hearty welcome—all came back to me now. I suppose my entrance made a sensation. I was conscious of a buzz of admiration as I passed through the assembled guests.

"Why, Lettie, my dear," exclaimed Lady Pendarves, "how beautiful you look! I declare your hoops and powder become you mightily. But come along, become, let me take you to Jack. He has been asking for you ever since he came back." And, taking my hand in her jeweled one, "Lettie, my dear, if you could—"

Just at this moment up came Jack (Major Pendarves he was now), looking handsome in his lussar uniform, yet just the same merry, smiling Jack of old. He was my partner in the new dance, called the waltz, just introduced from abroad—a dance that my mother did not quite approve as she considered it too familiar for young men and maidens, but which I found very agreeable with Jack for partner.

"Well, Lettie, you have grown quite a woman now, and I suppose have quite forgotten your old sweetheart?"

"Oh, Jack, how can you? I have my half here," touching my pocket. "Can you say as much?"

"Yes, dear, that I can. I have never parted with it. It has been with me through every battle—my talisman of safety and love."

What need to tell again the old story, ever sweet, that men will love to tell and women to hear as long as the world endures; suffice it that the dance had ended I had promised to be his wife.

"Oh, Jack," I said, as he was lead- ing me back to Lady Pendarves, "I felt almost wicked to accept you. You know I have not a penny, and my dress," I added with a laugh, "is Aunt Lettie's."

"I don't care if you haven't a penny. I have enough for both, and I want you for yourself and not for your money."

Lady Pendarves was delighted and Sir John was kind, and so it was set- tled that, with my mother's permission, we were to be married ere Jack rejoined his regiment.

"And now," said Lady Pendarves, "you must really go and dance with some of the other guests and leave Lettie to me."

I was sitting, oh, so happy, by Sir John, who was making all sorts of plans for our future, when I saw a tall, gentleman, dressed in foreign uniform, making his way through the guests to- ward the recess where we were. I had noticed him several times before in the course of the evening regarding me most attentively.

As he was evidently coming to speak to us I said:

"Who is this gentleman, Sir John?"

"Oh, my dear, a Mr.—Mr.—but, tut, I forget his name for the moment—a friend of Jack's, who came over from France with him, and is staying a few days with us."

By this time the gentleman had made his way across the hall, and stood bow- ing to us.

"May I have the honor of this dance?" he inquired.

I was going to reply "No," for I wanted to rest till Jack came back to me, when Sir John said, "Yes, Lettie, ever, the happiest day must end, and so I suppose must a merry evening. Jack and I and Mr. Tresillian were again sail- ing over the frost bound roads toward home, I with my hand in Jack's, ap- preciously happy, and Mr. Tresillian tell- ing us his experience as a prisoner in France. Poor fellow, how I pitied him! At last we arrived at the Dover House, and it was agreed that I should go in first and break the news to my mother and aunt. Mother came into the hall to meet me.

"Well, my child, have you enjoyed yourself? But, there, I need not ask you—you look radiant."

"Oh, mother dear," I laying my hand on her shoulder, "I am so happy. Jack has asked me, and if you consent, we are to be married at Christmas." And answer my mother kissed me. "For mother, Jack is here, and some one else, when you and aunt, too, will be glad to see an old friend."

"An old friend? But, my dear child, why don't you bring them in?"

"Jack, dear," I cried, "come in, both of you. Oh, mother, dearest," I said, half laughing and half crying, "he was not killed. He did not die."

"Was not killed? What do you mean?" replied my mother turning round as Jack, followed by Mr. Tresillian, came up the hall. My mother put our both hands to take Jack's, and then, catching sight of Mr. Tresillian's face, exclaimed, "Merciful heaven, Gilbert!"

"Yes, Mary, it is I. Not dead, as you see. And Lettie?"

"Is waiting still, Gilbert. Oh, Major Pendarves, I am so glad. Lettie has told me. And, now, child, go into the oak parlor and break the news to your aunt. No, perhaps I had better. Gilbert, come when I call." Jack and I went over to the fire, and in a few minutes mother's voice called, "Gilbert, Gilbert, come quick!"

Mother soon rejoined us, and together in the firelight we talked over our plans, Jack saying I must go to London and be presented at court on my mar- riage. There is little else to tell. As Lady Pendarves had said, there were two Miss Trehermes married together, and though Jack would never agree with me, I always said Aunt Lettie looked the better of the two.—Exchange.

At and Around St. Malo.

It is autumn, and already the New- foundland fishing boats are coming back one by one. There is a saying here that it is "the wind of St. Fran- cis that brings home the Terre-neuvais," and surely on the 4th of October, the fete of St. Francis d'Assisi, there is a fair, strong wind blowing from the west. In many of the villages round St. Malo and inland, where one can no longer catch sight of the sea, there will be those who turn their faces westward to- day to greet the wind that has filled the returning sails. In many of the cot- tages the good wife will look to her cot- tage and tell herself that it must be ready against the gas come home. Perhaps the gas is indeed a boy, as the word signifies; perhaps also he is a gray haired man, but to the good wife who waits for him at home he is always the gas. And she brings out the great armchair from the corner, where it has stood unused all the long summer, and sets it by the fire. It is empty still, but she fills it for the present with hope.

Outside the sun shines broadly golden and the trees wave in the wind. One hears the thud of falling apples, and the ground beneath is variously yellow or green or red with them. In the yard there is a scented shining heap of fruit, and the cider mill is at work. Every- where there is the rich, strong smell of apples in the air. It is autumn, and the Terre-neuvais are coming home.—Mac- millan's Magazine.

True Western Hospitality.

People in the eastern cities know not the meaning of the word "hospitality," as it is written in the dictionary of the western ranchman.

"Why," said Senator Warren of Wy- oming, discussing some of the charac- teristics of western people with a repre- sentative of the Washington Post the other day, "I would regard it as a per- sonal insult if I went to a house on any ranch and found the door locked. The first impulse of the average western man on such an occasion would be to break the door down."

"But how about locking up when the inmates go away?"

Senator Warren laughed. "It would make no difference at all," he said. "We all go on the general supposition that a man traveling through the coun- try is hungry. If he has any food in his haversack and finds nobody at home, he goes in the house, takes possession of the kitchen and cooks his meal. If he has nothing, he helps himself to what he can find. He does it as a matter of course, and the family would feel that he was worse than a dog if he declined to share with them even the smallest bit of food that they happened to have in store."—Chicago Tribune.

Some Canadian Indians.

Some of these Canadian Indians are not only civilized, but they are rapidly reaching the point where the line di- viding them from other citizens be- comes indistinct and gradually vanishes. The outward and visible signs of this are numerous and emphatic. They live in comfortable houses with flower gardens and gravelled walks. They have adopt- ed the clothing, the dietary and many of the customs of the whites. They make for themselves roads, and they build bridges. They have their own ag- ricultural societies, with their annual shows. They trade with acumen equal to any of their neighbors, and whenever they affect the occupations of the pale- face they prove themselves equal, while losing none of their skill at the voca- tions peculiarly their own. They are thus expert as lumbermen, sawyers and carpenters, fruitpickers, guides, pilots, flax pickers, coopers, basket makers, teamsters, meat canning, blacksmiths, miners, lime burners, etc. They have even entered the learned professions.—National Review.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE"

IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE.

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths, the Plain Facts, the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life, Who Would Atone for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls, Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood, and How to At- tain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonder with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to obtain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self-control, de- pendency, etc.

To exchange a faded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, etc.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men who need it.

A devastating man, who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday, and my new self was born today. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

"If you dumped a cart load of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done."

Write to the ERIE MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N. Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well intro- duced.

Deaths and Funerals.

The Remains of Emory Austin Taken to Alger Last Evening.

John Jones Died Last Evening and will be Buried at Shawnee To-morrow—Other Funerals.

Benjamin Austin, the father of Emory Austin, the teamster who was drowned in Ford's stone quarry Sunday night, arrived here last evening from his home in Alger, a small station east of this city on the C. & E. The untimely death of the young man was a sad blow to the father, who is quite aged.

The unfortunate teamster is said to have been a good swimmer, and that his death was from drowning in so small a body of water was a surprise to his father. It seems that the young man could have saved himself but for a fatal mistake he made after falling into the water. When the body was raised to the surface of the water it was found that Austin had withdrawn an arm from a sleeve of his coat. Apparently, instead of striking out boldly as soon as he came to the surface, Austin tried to remove his coat in order that he could have a better chance to swim, but got only one arm out of the coat and the garment then became wrapped about him and he became exhausted trying to free himself.

The father left here at 9:15 o'clock last night, on C. & E. train 8, and took the remains to his home at Alger, where the funeral services will be held to-morrow.

JOHN JONES' DEATH.

The death of John Jones, which had been constantly expected for the past week, occurred at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Jones, at 1117 Blaine avenue, Solarville, yesterday afternoon, his death resulting from consumption of the bowels.

The deceased was 26 years of age and was of Welsh descent. He was an eccentric character, and by reputation he is doubtless well known by all readers of the TIMES-DEMOCRAT. Jones had but few associates and always seemed to care more for his own company than any one else's. During the past few years he was frequently seen in out-of-the-way places at any and all hours of the night and this fact led the police to the belief that he was a crook. When a burglary or a highway robbery was committed, or a lone woman was frightened half to death in some dark street, Jones was sure to be credited with the deed. He was arrested frequently and was suspected more frequently, but was never convicted but once, and that was upon the last charge against him, and even in that case he was granted a new trial by the circuit court. Whether or not he was guilty of any or all of the crimes and offenses charged against him will never be known by mortals. He will answer to a higher court of justice.

His funeral will occur at Shawnee church, Wednesday afternoon, and his remains will be interred in the Shawnee cemetery.

MRS. SUSAN ELIZABETH BREESSE.

The funeral services of Mrs. Susan Elizabeth, wife of George Breese, of Shawnee township, occurred this morning. The funeral was one of the largest country funerals ever held in Shawnee township. The cortege left the residence, about four miles southwest of the city, at 10 o'clock, and at 10:30 o'clock the services were conducted from the Shawnee church. The pall bearers were all young ladies and nieces of the deceased. The remains were interred in the Shawnee cemetery.

MRS. ELIZABETH BRESSLER.

The funeral services of Mrs. Elizabeth, the aged wife of Delbert Bressler, of 939 east High street, were held from the residence at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and were also largely attended, by many of the older residents.

The remains were interred in the Bressler cemetery, about four miles east of the city.

The funeral services of Joseph Heffner, the old citizen and carpenter who died at his home on north Union street, Sunday afternoon, were held from the First Evangelical Lutheran church, at Spring and Pierce streets, at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. I. G. Miller, and the remains were interred in Woodlawn cemetery.

MRS. MARY MAXWELL.

Mrs. Mary, wife of Ohas Maxwell, died at Anderson, Ind., yesterday morning, her death resulting from consumption, after a long illness. The remains were brought here on L. E. & W. train 4 at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon and were taken to the home of J. W. Maxwell, on north West street, where brief services will be held, and the remains will be interred in Woodlawn cemetery, this evening.

MRS. JOHN LAWLER.

The funeral services of Mrs. John Lawler, who died at her late home on north Elizabeth street, were held from St. Rose church this morning at 8:30 o'clock. Rev. A. B. Manning, celebrated high mass requiem, and Rev. Andrew Kenny, of Cincinnati, delivered the funeral sermon. The services were very largely attended. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery.

WILL BE BURIED TO-MORROW.

The officials of the P. Ft. W. & C. passed through Lima this morning on an inspection tour of their road. Assistant General Superintendent Bickell and Division Superintendent S. E. Kroner, of the L. E. & W., made a trip over the east end of the Sandusky division yesterday.

GEORGE MOSS

Brings Suit Against Zack Pyle for Money Lost at Gambling.

Yesterday George Moss, colored, commenced suit in Justice Mowen's court for the recovery, from Zack Pyle, of $22.50, which he claims Pyle won from gambling. Moss alleges that he got into game in a gambling room near the southeast corner of the square, and lost the $22.50. The game was one in which crap dice were used, but it was not a genuine "crap" game. The case has been set for a hearing before Justice Mowen at 9 o'clock Friday morning.

VIRGINIA KNAPP

Gives an Exhibition of Her Peculiar Power.

In the opera house last evening a small party of ladies and gentlemen saw Miss Virginia Knapp exercise some extraordinary and wonderful powers of mind and body. Most of those who had been invited to see her display this peculiar force, went disbelieving, and expected to witness an exhibition of fake mind reading. But what she did clearly demonstrated to the witnesses that she possesses certain faculties not commonly given to men or women. What this power is, she cannot tell. She claims to be no spiritualistic medium and did nothing in darkness, but everything she did was clearly open to inspection.

Miss Knapp is a tall woman and inclined to be slender and weighs about 120 pounds. She has dark hair, and her features are feminine and rather pleasing. Her eyes are very brilliant and her face thoughtful. She is not muscular, and the power she so easily resists leads witnesses to believe that she has some extraordinary gift. That she could withstand the force of six men seems almost incredible. She made herself stationary at will, and it was impossible for five persons to move her. Dr. Bates, Dr. Mumsaugh, Gus Kaib, Tom Robinson, G. M. Sprague and a TIMES-DEMOCRAT representative by request went on the stage and tested her power.

She first allowed any two of the men to lift her, each taking hold of her elbows, and she then asked them to lift her again, but it was impossible for them to do so, after exerting all of their strength.

She next grasped an ordinary pole in her hands, and holding her arms out directly from the shoulder asked each one of the persons on the stage to force her arms back or to push her from the place she was standing. Each failed in the effort. Then all six of the men tried to force her from her position but she overcame the combined force of them all.

She then placed an ordinary billiard cue on two fingers of her left hand and held it loosely with the thumb and two fingers of the other hand, leaving the cue slant downward. If an ordinary person had held it as she did it would have fallen to the floor. She did not grasp the cue. Every one tried to push it to the floor but could not exert sufficient strength to do so. Two men then attempted to force it over her fingers but the cue did not move at all from its place of rest.

A young boy was called to the stage and each person on the stage was asked to lift the boy. Miss Knapp then placed her hands under the boy's hands and when the boy was lifted the second time there was an apparent increase in weight. As one would grasp the two arms of the boy a sensation was felt that resembled the current from a mild electric battery. Miss Knapp also gave an exhibition of mind reading, or "mind transference."

She was blindfolded and taken off the stage. During her absence various articles were concealed in different places in the house by several persons. She was brought back and placing her left hand in the right hand of her subject and her right hand upon his forehead led him to the place where the article was concealed, and found it.

Miss Knapp has been conscious of her power since she was seven years old, and since then has been enjoying it in public demonstrations.

CHECK WASN'T GOOD.

Fred Woodcock Gets Himself Into Trouble Again.

Last evening Victor Cardosi, of Cardosi Bros.' fruit store, called at the police station and requested the arrest of Fred Woodcock, whom he claimed, had obtained money from him on a check that was not good. Cardosi claims that Woodcock presented a check for $25 drawn in favor of himself and with the name of M. S. Schall signed to it. Cardosi gave Woodcock $10 on the check, and the latter was to call for the balance to-day. Cardosi mistrusted Woodcock and upon making inquiry, found that the check was not genuine.

Woodcock was arrested at an early hour this morning and is locked up at the police station awaiting the arrival of his father from some city in Indiana, when he expects to settle the case.

HOTEL HARROD

Passed into New Hands—Attleberger & Snyder the New Proprietors.

The Harrod House, located on east Market street, passed into the hands of a new management the first of this month, and the business is now conducted by J. W. R. Attleberger and A. C. Snyder. These gentlemen are entering upon a new enterprise, both having been for the past twenty years in the employ of the Standard Oil company. Mr. Attleberger is well known to the people of Lima. Mr. Snyder is a comparative stranger, having recently come here from Pennsylvania. Both are genial gentlemen and will make hospitable landlords. They contemplate making many changes in the interior of the hotel, and improvements will be made in the office and lunch room. They also intend placing the dining room down stairs, thus making it much more convenient for their patrons and the public. These gentlemen have excellent ideas as regards the management of their house, which, if carried out, will make them popular hotel men.

LONDON, May 6.—Truth claims Cecil Rhodes' plan for the Jameson raid was to march upon Pretoria and make a prisoner of President Kruger. This would cause the stock of the South African company to depreciate and Rhodes and his gang would purchase it for a song. Then the freebooters were to march to Johannesburg with the Rhodes was soon to be made king of all south Africa and England was to be defiled.

MILWAUKEE STRIKE.

Federated Trades Council Promises Financial Support.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 6.—The Federated Trades Council did not, as reported, order a sympathetic strike. Resolutions indorsing the cause of the strikers and promising moral and financial support were adopted. A committee was appointed to go to the council meeting and complain of the officiousness of the police in helping to run cars and in some instances collecting fares.

The street car lines are tied up more closely than at the same hour yesterday. Only three cars had been run all morning, while yesterday 12 or 15 were in operation before 9 o'clock.

All electrical workers in the employ of the street railway have gone on a sympathetic strike.
